AMUSEMENTS.

The Briarbrook in "Aladdin, Jr." Henry Norman, who plays Abanazar, the magician, in "Aladdin, Jr.," and whose hit in the "Boozleman" in "Sinbad" is well remembered here, made another hit last night in the new topical song "The Stars Alone Can Tell" that is sung by a quintet in the fourth act. There was a large audience, society being well represented, and after Ada Deaves, Albert Froom, John Cain and John Barke had put the audience in a good humor with topical verses, Norman gave a description of the recent and now historical fox hunt of the Briarbrook Club. Seldom has a topical verse been known to convulse an audience as did this one. Norman has an excellent voice and not a word was lost. The audience went wild, as the saying goes, in the middle of the stanza, so that the leader had to stop the orchestra and wait for the applause to cease. Then Norman went on with the song and got a second evation at the close. By way of no harm and to show the courageous participators in that memorable fox chase that there was not slander in the stanza it is quoted as follows:

"Our leaders of society Are fond of a variety They chased a 'coon skin for a fox through brier, brook and dell; But it started such a riot

And when they ride to hounds again—the stars alone can tell." There were also stanzas on Superintendent Poweil, Green Smith and Roby that made the song the best hit of the show. Aside from this, the next most entertaining feature is the antics of "Lucifer," a large Angora cat, black as midnight. Lucifer plays an amusing part with Burke, Norman and Cain, is made love to by Allen Crater, filrts with Frankle Raymond's pretty skirts and chases Ada Deaves through the ballet in a way unlike any other cat ever did before. "Lucifer" is played by David Abrahams, who for the last four years has been a member of Henry Irving's company. He is regarded as one of the best animal There were also stanzas on Superintenactors of London, and while he is not seen very often on the stage, he makes a feature of his business whenever he is before the public. There are abundant features in this piece to please the little folks, and the matinee to-day will be crowded with the juvenile population. The last performance of this engagement will take place to-night.

BILLS AND REPORTS

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION BATTLE ABOUT TO BEGIN.

First Tilt in House-Kern's Constitutional Amendment in the Senate-New Bills.

It was evident from the breeze a building and loan association resolution stirred up on the floor of the House yesterday that a strong sentiment exists over the State in behalf of amending the laws under which these associations operate. The impression is strong that men of wealth have taken advantage of the law to invest in paid-up stock and thus exempt their investments from taxation. Mr. Howe, of Morgan, introduced the resolution calling for a general bill to be drafted by a committee and covering all the points of building and loan association law. He said these associations were primarily designed for the benefit of workingmen who were ambitious to build homes. Designing men, he added, have perverted this intention by converting the associations into instruments for their own profit. He thought there should be a uniform system governing the associations. Mr. Stotsenberg, of Floyd, who is an ardent supporter of the associations, was on his feet with a protest. He declared that Indiana had the best laws on the subject of any State in the Union. Paid-up stock ought to be taxed, and amendments also made to prevent the use of dues for general expenses. Mr. Holloway inquired if it was not unfair to compel foreign companies to deposit $100,000 in cash in lieu of securities. Mr. Cardwill informed the gentleman that a subcommittee of the judiciary committee was investigating the subject. Mr. Harrison, of Shelby county, who admitted that he was an attorney for several associations, had found that rich men put money in the associations to escape taxation. Mr. Howe announced, with some show of indignation, that he knew of men in Morgan county who had been fleeced by Indianapolis associations. Mr. Harrison, of Kosciusko, feared the appointment of a special committee to consider building and loan associations, lest some men who are interested in the evils of the system be named for positions on the committee. The records of some of the associations, he found, had created a great scandal. The associations should not be accorded a greater privilege than a bank in hiding taxable money. The resolution of Mr. Howe was finally laid on the table, as it was understood that the judiciary committee would look after pro-posed legislation on the subject. Mr. Speaker introduced a bill himself yesterday, and it is of much importance to Indianapolis. It compels all street-car companies in this city to pave between their tracks and pay a proportionate cost of street improvements. The Board of Works is given the power to compel these improve-ments. The bill declares that it does not recognize any franchise that may now be in dispute. Mr. Van Arsdel also had street-car bills of local interest. One prohibits the construction of lines on streets within two blocks of a parallel line, without the con-sent of two-thirds of the property owners on the street where the proposed line is to run. Another of his bills compels county public highways where two-thirds of the property owners petition.

POPPYCOCK SQUELCHED. A bit 2 poppycock, proposed by the distinguished Representative from Posey, was promptly squelched. Mr. Wilson presented a resolution anent the Brooklyn strike, reciting the fact that the motormen only received 74 cents a day, and declaring that the sympathy of the General Assembly of Indiana was with the abused men, and repudiating and condemning the actions of the officials chosen to preside over the city of New York. He called on Grover Cleverland to appoint a commission to immediately arbitrate the strike. Mr. Hamrick moved that the resolution be referred to the Democratic fee-grabber, Greene Smith, and Mr. Holloway proposed as an amendment that a committee from Tammany Hall be substituted. The resolution of the Hall be substituted. The resolution of the county statesman was promptly abled, only one vote being recorded against

The Miller-Bowers election contest was laid over until Tuesday morning. During the morning Mr. Bobilya, Wayne, presented a resolution which the ommon Council of Fort Wayne had adopted, protesting against the charter amendments submitted by the Mayor.

Mr. Howe had another constitutional amendment. It called for a four years' tenure of office of the State officers and the principal county officers. The committee on judiciary will look after the resolution behave the House and work it.

ore the House acts upon it.

Mr. Nicholson introduced a fee and salary bill which was prepared by some citizens of Kokomo. The introduction was by request. In some cases the bill provides that county officers shall receive 10 per cent. of the fees they collect. Superior Court judges are given $3,000 salary, circuit judges, $3,500, and criminal judges, $2,500.

A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Senator Kern Wants a Quicker Method of Making Amendments. The session of the Senate yesterday lasted scarcely half an hour. The upper branch of the General Assembly was short of talent. The prison committee was off to Michigan City for the purpose of taking a look at the Northern Penitentiary, and to put a few questions to Warden French concerning his stewa dship. Several Senators, not members of the committee, had accompanied the committee on education to Bloomington, for the purpose of visiting the State University, and the senatorial ranks were further depleted by the absence of members who had been excused. When the Senate was called to order it was evident that there was no quorum, and what business was transacted was kept in lines that would not disclose the lack of it. The committee on judiciary presented a number of reports. The cigarette bill of Senator Baker was reported with a number of amendments, and as amended was recommended for passage. The bill as made over fixes the license for cigarette wholesalers at $50 and for retailers at $25. Application for a license must be made to the county commissioners, and if required the applicant must show that he is a man of good moral character. A license cannot be issued to a person under twenty-one years of age, and violation of the law makes the offender ineligible for a license. To procure a license to sell cigarettes the process is the same as that prescribed for the procurement of a liquor license. The penalty for violations is a fine of from $5 to $100, but the provision that Senator Baker had incorporated providing for a reward to the informer was stricken out.

The judiciary committee made a report on the pure food inspector's bill striking out that section which provides that the inspector shall have a per cent, of the fines as a part of his compensation, and that section which also gives a per cent. of the fine collected to the informer. As amended the committee asked the reference of the bill to the committee on agriculture, and it was so referred. Senator Kern introduced, by request, a joint resolution to amend Section 1, Article emendment is to provide a more expeditious method of engrafting changes or additions upon the organic law. The resolution reads as follows: "Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in either branch of the General Assembly; and if the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members of the two houses such pro-posed amendment or amendments shall, with the yeas and nays thereon, be entered on their journals and thereupon such Gen-eral Assembly shall provide for the sub-mission of such amendment or amendments the next succeeding general election, and if a majority of said electors shall ratify the same such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the constitution."

Several bills were introduced. Senator Boyd introduced a bill providing more stringent penalties for gambling. His measure fixes a fine of from $100 to $500 to which may be added imprisonment not exceeding six months for any one convicted of present six months for any one convicted of operating a gambling house, and any person convicted of visiting a gambling house is made liable to a fine of from $20 to $100 to which may be added imprisonment not to exceed three months. the Fifty-fourth judicial circuit to consist of the county of Ekhart. Other judicial circuits in that part of the State are changed to make the Thirty-third judicial circuit consist of the counties of Kosciusko and Whitley and the Thirty-fourth circuit consist of the countles of Noble and Lagrange.

Senator Cranor Makes a Plain Statement to His Colleagues.

Senator Cranor, during yesterday's session, rose to a question of personal privilege and said: "I think it is just and proper for me, as chairman of the committee on fees and salaries, to make a statement. There has been so much said pro and con in the public press concerning the organization of county officers and the fee bill introduced by Senator T. E. Boyd that I deem it right to make this statement. Senator Boyd prepared the fee and salary bill at my request and that of many others. The same has been referred to my committee. I only want to most carnestly in-sist that Senator Boyd has been entirely exonerated from any connection whatever with the county officers' organization; that he did his hard and laborious work most faithfully and that the members of my any regard to political affiliation, are of the opinion that anything that has been said to the contrary concerning our colaborer and friend is wholly without foundation, and is simply malicious and without a shadow of truth to sustain it."

THE APPOINTING POWER.

Hamrick's Bill to Take It Away from the Governor. The first bill proposing to take away all appointments from the Governor was introduced yesterday afternoon by Mr. Hamrick. It places all the appointments now controlled by the Governor in the hands of a board consisting of the Governor, Secretary of State and Auditor of State. The election of State librarian is left to the Legislature. A friend of Governor Matthews intimated yesterday that the Governor might decline to take any part Governor might decline to take any part in the proceedings of such a board, as he would have no hand in making the appointments, and yet would bear part of the weight of the responsibility. Mr. Hamrick's bill was presented the first thing in the afternoon. Mr. Remy also introduced a bill, which is really a revised copy of his greenback taxation bill. A vote was then called for on a motion to adjourn over until Monday, and it was found that a quorum was not present. The House promptly stood adjourned upon this showing, and a session will be held this merning.

well received. The Highland Fling danced by Messrs, Coutts and Stewart, in full costume, to the music of the bagpipes played by Mr. Bryson, and the Scotch reel, by the same men and Messrs. West and Ferguson, were fine. Among the others who took part were Miss May Johnson, Miss Josephine Robinson, Mr. J. M. L. Kerr, Prof. McAvoy, Mr. Carl Cameron, Messrs. Kerr. Londen, Stewart and Clark, Mr. Morris Meck, Miss Agnes Denison, Mr. James H. Ferguson, Mr. Hugh Campbell, and Mr. James Cameron. At the end of the programme the pudlerce joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Legislative Notes. The file clerk of the House, Mr. Maxedon, is not one of those whose salaries were placed at $3 a day. It is $5 a day. Only the folding clerks are paid $3. The Democratic chief of the Evansville fire department has been in the city several days in the interest, so he claims, of the pension fund bill. The gentleman will carry back to Evansville recollections of a highly convivial life in the capital.

Senator McLean has filed with the Legislature a bill of R. F. Havens, executive director of the Indiana world's fair commission, amounting to $1,034.68. This amount Mr. Havens claimed to have expended from his salary for expenses, and the Legislature is asked to reimburse him to that amount.

None but Editors and Proprietors of Republican Papers Eligible to Membership-Officers Elected.

The Indiana Republican editors were a little late getting up yesterday morning, after their banquet of the night before, and it was a half hour past the hour on the programme when, at 9:30, President C. After the reading of the minutes the chairman of the committee on constitution reported, and the new constitution was adopted by sections. The radical changes are that applicants for membership hereafter must be either publishers, editors or associate editors of a Republican newspaper in the State of Indiana, of general circulation and acknowledged respecta-

ROBERT BURNE'S BIRTHDAY Fittingly Celebrated by the Caledonian Club Last Night.

Y. M. C. A. Hall was given over to the Scotch last night when the Caledonian Quoiting Club celebrated the Burns anniversary. There was a large audience and an enthusiastic one. The platform was decorated with palms, flowers, flags and the portraits of Walter Scott and Robert Burns. To announce the gathering of the clans Mr. James Bryson played "The Campbells Are Coming" on the bagpipes while marching up and down in front of the platform. A stray black dog followed at a respectful distance evidently wondering at the strange instrument. The officers of the club soon came in and took their places in chairs on the platform. A company of six in Highland costume and six in full dress sang "Rantin Rovin' Robin." President J. D. Gault welcomed the audience, briefly, to the entertainment which celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of the club and the 136th anniversary of the "Plowman Poet, Robert Burns." Then he introduced "Doctor" Milburn.

The first word that the speaker said was

"I am not a 'Doctor,' but a plain 'Mister," and that he would not make an address but give a plain talk. Mr. Milburn said he loved the Scotch and he had good reason to, is he was Scotch on his maternal side "which probably accounts for my theology and my Presbyterianism." Mr. Milburn mentioned the Scotch, in the matter of clothes, the picturesque costume just seen, worn by Mr. Bryson; the tartan, the bagpipes and the cairn gorn, and "it puts to blush the Prince Albert," he said; the language of the Scotch, and he named "bairn," "bonnie lassic" and other words; the literature, with its power and origi-nality; the great philosophers, Hume and Sir William Hamilton; the economist, Adam Smith; the biographer, Boswell; the historian, Carlyle; the greatest mind, next to Shakspeare, Sir Walter Scott.

"One more reason," he said, "why Scotland should be loved is because it was made immortal by Robert Burns. His was a com-mon prosate life, the life of an ordinary man in an ordinary sphere. To speak of him as a poet is to speak of sweet songs. The simplicity of Burns's poetry brings to mind what Mr. James Whitcomb Riley remarked: 'I don't know about Milton. When I take up Paradise Lost, I feel like putting on my overalls,' and again, when the information overalls,' and again, when the information was given that Milton received only $25 for Paradise Lost, Mr. Riley said 'that might have been a good price for the Seventeenth century, but if he should write it to-day $5 would be a good price.' Burns speaks a common speech, of common sense to a common people. Another thing in Eurns's poetry is the patriotism. He sang songs which every Secteman should leve. Then there was his sensibility, fihis was at once his weakness and his strength; but in his weakness he had great company, for many of the great of earth had his same weakness of the great of earth had his same weakness and his same virtue. Scotland is the home of songs. This seems strange when we know that the only Scotch instrument is the bagpipe. This was well enough for war, but what would it be to court a lassie, and what for a lullaby. It is mighty in battle Mr. Milburn then quoted the different songs of Scotland; for nerve and dash, "Green grow the rushes O;" for love, "High-land Mary;" for sweet reflection, "To Mary in Heaven," All were effectively given. Mr. Milburn closed that part with a quotation from the Burns of the Augustan erafrom the Burns of the Augustan eraHorace. "He lacked the honors in his life but now he has the coronation in the hearts of men." Mr. Milburn was frequently applauded during his remarks and several times was interrupted by the applause.

The programme which followed was a rich Scottish treat. There were over twenty numbers on the list and many recalls were given. The corcert lasted well on to midnight. Mr. C. Reigger played a viole solo, "Blue Bells of Scotland," with variations and at the end of nearly every part the audience applauded. He was ably accompanied by Mrs. Reigger. For a response he played a medley of Boottish airs which were well received. The Highland Fling danced by Messrs. Coutts and Stewart, in full cos-

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME YESTERDAY MORNING.

Has Not Been Well for a Year or More. and Had Been Expecting Death -Heavy Life Insurance.

Olaf R. Olson, manufacturer of bolts and a practical worker in all kinds of iron, died yesterday at his home on North Capitol avenue. Death came suddenly and was the result of shock due to a violent attack of diarrhoa, which an already weakened system could not withstand. He was suffering pain when he came home from his factory at the supper hour the night before, bringing with him some of the office books of account in which he wanted to finish some work. The attack first appeared about 9 o'clock and his wife urged him to retire, but he refused to do so, saying he wanted to continue his work. Mrs. Olsen could not sleep from anxiety and at midnight went to her husband and found him still suffering but still unwilling to retire. A couple of hours later she realized that her husband was seriously ill and prevailed upon him to go to their room. It was with difficulty that she could get him up stairs so much exhausted was he. He soon became unconscious and in great trepidation messengers were sent to call Dr. Crose and Dr. Kahlo, who live near Ly. They found the atient unconscious. Later Dr. Kimberlain, the family physician was called, but death soon ensued. The patient showed that he had suffered as if from loss of blood. Dr. Kimberlain said last night that Mr. Olsen had not been well for a year or more, and in fact had been greatly weakened by an attack of grip two years ago. Death, he said, was immediately due to the shock from the bowel trouble. Olaf R. Olsen was a native of Copenhagen,

Denmark, and was forty-six years of age Itis ather was the proprietor of a machine shop and the son learned the business with a facility that indicated genius. Owing to business reverses the son left his native land and settled in America. He came to this city in 1873, and took employment with Sinker, Davis & Co. He saved his earnings and in time purchased an interest in an iron manufacturing venture which proved a failure. His next start in business was as a contractor for the iron work in the First Presbyterian Church. A friend induced him to make a bid promising that if he obtained it, there would be no trouble in finding security for such purchases as he would have to make. He fitted up a shop and at first employed a boy. The work was done well and profitably and gradually the business enlarged until it became the prosperants plant of the Indianancia Rolt and Management of the Indianancia Rolt and Management. ous plant of the Indianapolis Bolt and Ma-chine works. Mr. Olsen served twice as a member of the city Council from the Thirteenth Ward, being a Democrat. He was not always in line with his party, but served his constituents faithfully. He resigned from the Council because he purchased a home on Capitol avenue and thus was living in another ward. During the last campaign for Capitol avenue and thus was living in another ward. During the last campaign for Mayor he allowed his name to be used as a candidate against T. L. Sullivan before the convention, but was not successful. He afterward complained that he was not well used by the Democratic leaders and he gave his support to the Republican candidate. Being known to be wealthy and peculiar, the party leeches made constant attack upon him for money which aided to disgust him with politics.

Mr. Olsen carried insurance policies amounting to $175,000. All but $100,000 of these had been allowed to lapse owing to the string-ency of the times which affected all manuency of the times which affected all manufacturers severly. One policy had an extension period carrying it in force until 1896 and the family will secure the benefit of it, although Mr. Olsen had concluded to allow it to lapse also. This policy was carried in the Mutual Benefit Insurance Company of New Jersey. The other companies sustaining the losses are the New England Mutual and the New York Life. Dr. Kimberlain said last night that in July he told Mr. Olsen that if he had any life insurance he ought by all means to keep it in force as he was likely to die before many years. as he was likely to die before many years. Mr. Olsen seemed somewhat excited by the information, but asked more particularly about his condition, stying that the Doctor need not fear frightening him. Mr. Olsen promised faithfully that he would continue the policies in force. The funeral v'll occur to-morrow from the residence, No. 469 North Capitol avenue. Rev. THE LIE PASSES AND BEN THORN-TON KNOCKS A MAN DOWN.

The Final Culmination of Some Fiery Words Which Were a Part of the Cleggett Trial.

Nettie Cleggett, who is charged with the murder of her infant child, was given a preliminary hearing before Judge Stubbs, in Police Court, yesterday morning. George Henry, who was arrested at the same time, upon a charge of immorality, was also given a hearing. Thomas Hanna appeared in behalf of the couple. Detective Ben Thornton is the prosecution's chief witness. Incidental to the examination, yesterday, Mr. Hanna and the court indulged in a sharp bit of repartee, and Thornton knocked Henry down, for which he was arrested. It was one of the liveliest times Police Court has known since Judge Stubbs took Detective Thornton began by reciting the incidents of the arrests and the circumstances which led up to it. called him to a stop and said he was to relate only facts and not repeat hearsay evidence. Thornton replied that he would act at the order of the court, but he was not subject to the orders of any attorney.

"I arrested Mrs. Cleggett at No. 3/9 North Mississippi street," began Thornton. had lived at No. 21 Roanoke street. When I made the arrest I told her to tell me the whole truth, and asked her if it was true that she had smothered her child. She hesi tated-" rected Mr. Hanna warningly and with some show of exasperation, for he had previoussay testimony and repeat only the conver-sation held with the defendant. Again Thornton began to testify, but Mr. Hanna jumped to his feet and stopped him with the remark:

"Tell only what you know. "I will, if you will keep still," answered Thornton angrily.

The substance of the remainder of the testimony, which was obtained with many objections from Mr. Hanna, was to the effect that Henry and Mrs. Cleggett had lived at No. 21 Roanoke street, where, on Dec. 27, a female child was born, which died Dec. 28. To Thornton, the mother ad-mitted having smothered it. Upon the introduction of the last bit of testimony, Mr. Hanna entered emphatic objections. Judge Stubbs told him to be quiet, as the trial was merely preliminary, and the court wanted to hear all the evidence, without stopping to debate upon its importance. Judge Stubbs ordered Mrs. Cleggett to take

"I object," said Mr. Hanna, springing to "Take the stand," repeated the court, ignoring Mr. Hanna's objection, "Don't you do it." demanded Mr. Hanna, addressing his client. There was fire in the Judge's eye, as he turned and said rather sharply to the at-Governor, take your seat. Do you under-

"If the court so orders," replied Mr. Hanna, as he took his seat. Mrs. Cleggett took the witness stand and the court asked her: "Were you and Henry married while you lived together on Roanoke street?"
"Don't you answer that," cried Mr. Hanna, forgetting the recent order of the court and jumping to his feet. and jumping to his feet.

"Mr. Hanna, I wish you would keep quiet and take your seat," said the court. Mr. Hanna entered a strong objection to the way he was being treated and said all he asked was fair treatment for himself and client. Judge Stubbs stopped all discussion by sending Mrs. Cleggett to the grand jury. Henry was placed on trial, and, chiefly, upon the testimony of detective Thornton, was fined $100 and sentenced to the work-

Lyon Medicine Co., Indianapolis, Ind.:
Gentlemen—I feel it to be my duty to inform you of the wonderful results that have followed the use of Lyon's Seven Wonders in my own case. I had been

A Sufferer for Eighteen years from indigestion and other complaints that come under the general term of "stomach trouble." I suffered

Many Sleepless Nights, and it was indeed a rare occurence to have a good night's rest. Thirteen years ago I went back to my former home in Germany, expect-ing to find relief from some of the celebrated Medicinal Springs in that country. None of these famous waters at any of the spas gave me any relief, and I re-turned to America Thoroughly Discouraged.

As the years went on, no matter what remedies I tried, I could only find the merest temporary relief. At last, to make the story short, I saw the advertisement of Lyon's SEVEN WONDERS, and concluded to give the remedy a trial. I seep now say that can now say that After Using Three Boxes I am a well man. My digestion is perfect. All pains in the stomach have vanished, and I can sleep like a child. LOUIS F. OTT, Jeweler.
